The Class History

The month of September '38
Is to each of our class a remembered date;
For then from the quiet of Junior High
We were swept in an eddy of jostling youth
To the senior building, where we were to try
To steer, through seas of learning and truth,
Towards some fine, worth-while port.
Captain Harvey Ewing commanded our ship,
With Eli Braley, first mate;
Betty Raiche kept the log;
Albert Foster, our cash;
And Miss Wentzell, early and late,
Charted our course with intelligent zeal
And everything started off straight.

Then two weeks later, something happened, indeed,
That we all could never forget:
A hurricane swept this way from the south—
It makes us quite shivery yet—
To think of the boats on our school house lawn,
And our tunnel underwater—
But our ship kept on its steady way,
Through the straits of high endeavor,
'Til on April 14th we received shore leave,
For a Freshman dance and spree,
And left hard work behind on the craft,
As we jitterbugged in glee.

Then we sailed and sailed in '39
'Till September came again,
When Capt. Clarke Wilbor took command
As Miss Kussmann scanned the main;
With Arthur Paquette, the new first mate,
Foster, counting our profit and loss,
And Betty Raiche continuing to note
Events in the good ship's log.
A leap year hop and a Sophomore dance,
Caused shore leave twice this year,
And Betty Raiche won the right to read

What the Honor Society had decreed
Its worthy hopes and laws.

In 1940 a new command
Took charge of our stalwart ship.
Dennis Mahoney was captain then,
Lynwood Lentell his mate,
And because our country's president
Had declared third terms O. K.
Albert Foster and Betty Raiche
Kept on their accustomed way.
Shoreleaves were granted to all the crew
Throughout this lively year.
A Junior Dues Dance was held at first,
And when Willkie campaigned near,
Most of us went to see him, to hear him speak,
And to give him a lusty cheer.
We continued to carry the school spirit high,
Held a Victory Dance to see
A New Bedford player in effigy,
Hung on a sour apple tree.

Storms — exams of mid year —
Chased smiles from many a face,
But eighteen of our members
Won an Honor Society place.
The Mardi Gras, our Junior Prom,
Crowned Louise Benson queen,
With Janet Swift and Betty Raiche,
Her fair attendants seen.
Then Junior Day arrived at last
With its traditional fun.
At last — at last — Seniors we were
And our final year begun.

A stop for a Get-together Dance;
Then plans for some ports of call
Were shattered by fiendish Japanese bombs,
A terrible shock to all.
They rocked our reverenced Ship of State;
We hurried to her side;
In Red Cross, defense work, stamps and bonds,

To do our best with pride —
Glad that our class could help somehow
The nations now allied
To bring back freedom to the earth —
Freedom, peace, and right.

Capt. Dick Cahoon has led us on Through this unusual year.
Earl Fisher has assisted him,
And again you hear
The names of Raiche and Foster
As members of the staff,
Four years they've served us faithfully —
Efficient to the last.

Mr. Kempf, orchestra leader, has left us with regret;
Betty Raiche, the D. A. R. pilgrim,
Won an honor hard to get;
The Snow Ball — Senior formal, was a note-worthy affair:
With his basketball high-scoring, came to
Drieson, honor rare;
With the Senior Play large numbers
Were thrilled and entertained;
The Student Council's credit was skillfully maintained;
And so we reach the Senior Prom —
The banquet — graduation.
It is the day our ship nears land.
Amid congratulations
We say goodbye to many friends
We may not see again;
We hope the world ahead of us,
Holds peace — if not renown.
And we'll never forget the F. H. S.
In the dear, old seaport town.

Jean Campbell,

The Class Will

We, the class of 1942 of the Fairhaven High School, county of Bristol, and state of Massachusetts, being of legal age, sound mind and memory, do make, publish, and declare this, our last will and testament, hereby revoking and making void any other promise heretofore made, as a thoughtless wish of an idle hour.

Item 1.

Our quiet manners and unassuming dignity we leave to those youngsters, the Freshmen, with the hope that they will never cause our Faculty any worry.

Item 2.

The members of the graduating class of "42" will a very definite contribution to the Sophomores, by leaving them Mary Bennett.

Item 3.

To the Juniors, who will take our place in the year to come, we bestow all of the luck, success, and co-operation that we have enjoyed for the past three years.

Item 4.

Alden Hayward relinquishes his position as school heart-breaker to "Professor" Adams.

Item 5.

Audrey Wallner, our fashion expert, donates her wardrobe to any ten or twelve Junior girls.

Item 6.

Bob Stearns hands down his unlucky dice to "Red" Taylor. May "Red" have more luck with them than did Bob.

Item 7.

Nat Kerwin bequeaths her giggle to Jean Fallow. I feel sure that Jean is the only one who can do justice to Nat's gift.

Item 8.

Charlie Archabald leaves his seat on the Mattapoisett bus to any Sophomore who wishes to miss only one football practice in three years.

Item 9.

Eleanor Eldredge is passing on her ability of knowing what's what around school, to Pat Cornell.

Item 10.

Roy Ingham leaves his half-wit humor to any Junior who has the other half.

Item 11.

Bill and Cynthia relinquish the one seat that was willed to them by Sally and Cal last year, to Barb and Harry. May they be as happy and as successful in that one seat as Bill and Cynthia were.

Item 12.

Bill Horsely bequeaths one of his milk shakes to any unsuspecting Junior.

Item 13.

Wanda Cornell leaves her make-up kit to Ruth Byerly. Let us hope it does as much for Ruth as it has done for Wanda.

Item 14.

Alfred — or is it Albert — well, one of them, wills his '32 Ford to Mr. Entin for experiments in his Highway Safety Class.

Item 15.

Janet Swift bestows upon the school two brothers. May they be as much help to their respective classes as Janet has been to hers.

Item 16.

John Handley, Clarke Wilbor, and Raul Cardoza will their hair tonic, hair curlers, wave water, and beauty appointments to Larry Jean.

Item 17.

"Teeta" Benson, our Junior Prom Queen, bequeaths her loud, long, and inspiring cheers to Pauline Duval.

Item 18.

Richard Cahoon, our president, leaves his '31 Chevy to any Junior who wants to dig it out of the junk pile.

Item 19.

Betty Raiche, our secretary, and Albert Foster, our treasurer, leave their scholastic records as a challenge to all coming classes.

Item 20.

Albert Silva bequeaths his unused athletic ability to Pete Lauzon.

Item 21.

Virginia Humphreys, the top flight artist of the class, leaves her sketches to any talented underclassman.

Item 22.

Dennie Mahoney would like to give half of his brain to any Junior without one, with a guarantee that within two months he will be in the A group on the Honor Roll.

Item 23.

Eli Braley leaves his well pressed trousers, flashy tie, and loud socks, along with his barber, to the Junior who turns into a cross between a Casanova and a Lockinvar, over night.

Item 24.

John Rapoza wills his fighting spirit to "Hippo" Avilla.

Item 25.

Jean Campbell leaves her English composition papers to Miss Siebert in memory of the 6th period English class.

Item 26.

Allen Sanders Reed, better known as "brother", very generously wills his ever-becoming eyelashes to any Junior who dreams of going to Hollywood.

Item 27.

The Senior boys leave the Sophomore girls to any group of boys that think they can stand them.

Item 28.

The Senior girl drivers have very patriotically agreed to return their drivers' licenses to Sears, Roebuck and Co. for the duration of the war.

Item 29.

Ernie Drieson leaves his basketball ability to any Junior who thinks he can fill his shoes. Remember, Juniors, Drieson was high scorer in Bristol County.

Item 30.

Bill Steele left the Senior Class with many fond and happy memories, and so we, in turn, leave to you lower classmen who knew Bill, the same.

Item 31.

To our Faculty, we leave our thanks and appreciation for all they have done for us. We realize, now, that it was no easy job pounding knowledge into solid ivory.

Item 32.

To Miss Hoyle, we leave our sympathy and regret that the play cast gave her so many headaches and sleepless nights.

Item 33.

To Miss Kussmann, our able Class Advisor, who has skillfully guided us along, we leave our very deepest and sincerest THANKS.

Item 34.

To the Faculty and to all the classes that will enter this school in years to come, we wish the best of health, happiness, and success.

In witness hereof, I have hereunto set my hand to this, the last will and testament of the Senior Class of '42, this day, the 13th of March, 1942, A. D.

Earl Fisher,

The Class Prophecy

If Dennis Mahoney, the class prophet, tries to tell you that he has written the following, don't believe him! I am allowing him to sign his name, but I am the author. You are probably wondering who I am. My name is Zzyt. I sit behind Harry Young in Room 7. I lead an obscure existence. Most of you do not even know me. However, I am a great influence in school affairs. I help Mr. Lawton with his homework in mathematics, and give Mr. Wood advice as to how to run the traffic squad. Nobody seems to be interested, but I live on the corner of Laurel and Green Streets. Because of my amazing prognostic powers, the class prophet asked me to write the prophecy for him. Since the world is at war, I have chosen five years after the Great Peace (with the United States and Great Britain dictating the terms) as the year about which to write.

Spring was in the air. It was a beautiful day, and I was walking down the streets of the great metropolis, Fairhaven. A far cry from the pre-boom days, the city which was chiefly the work of the famous engineer, Frank Viera, dwarfed New Bedford in size. The huge skyscrapers, most of which were built by Eli Braley, towered above the broad streets. Since that fateful day when Gordon Sisson, the famed geologist, discovered gold in the wilds of Mattapoisett, Fairhaven had grown from a small town to a gigantic city.

The first building I noticed was, perhaps, the most important. A sign on the door read "Offices of the Globular Gold Consessions." All the shareholders were millionaires. They were having a board meeting, and on gaining admittance, I saw that the chairman was Robert Stearns. The other rich-looking individuals were Eliot Lumbard, Francis Roberts, and Herbert Gilmore. However, the biggest shareholders, Lloyd Haskell and Donald Wood were not present. Upon inquiry, I was told that they were in Washington and had been indicted by the Supreme Court for failure to pay their income taxes. In the outer office, I recognized some of the typists and stenographers. Among them were Rosetta Daigle, Yvonne Cormier, Mary Furtado, Agnes Harrington, Eleanor Healey, Regina Perry, and Shirlee Thompson.

The first person to whom I spoke was Tommy Sullivan, the brains of the law firm "Cohen, Cohen, Cohen and Sullivan". He gave me some tickets to a prize fight for the heavyweight championship of the world between "Hurricane" Heuberger and Roy Ingham, better known as "The Bomber". In the last fight, Roy knocked Helmuth out in the 14th round, and his manager, John McLeod, has said that he is a sure repeater. In the same fight Heuberger knocked out Ray Huggard, the famous referee. However, "Hurricane's" manager and trainer, Lindsey Gifford and John Francis, have been working on Heuberger and when I saw them last, they were confident that their boy will get the right man in the coming bout. With Tommy were Chester Long and Ernest Livsey, the renowned golf professionals. Tommy was going out to get a few lessons. They invited me to shoot a round or two but that nineteenth hole always ruined me, so I declined. On my refusal, they suggested that I attend the mass meeting in the Fairhaven Garden.

On entering the mammouth hall, a great shout arose, for Louis Adams of the Mahoney-Adams political machine that runs the city, state, and the nation, had just finished one of his long-winded speeches. On the speaker's platform were His Honor the Mayor, Earl Fisher, who was coming up for re-election soon, Governor Lynwood Lentell, and Harry Young, who has great aspirations towards the Presidency. Beside Harry was his private secretary, Louise Noblet, and it was rumored — .

While I was leaving the hall, I bumped into Russ Pierce and John Rapoza of the East End Giants, the National Professional Football Champions. I also spoke to Eleanor Roderick, the well-known florist. She told me that Allie Hayward was singing the "Six Little Tailors", "Pepsi-Cola", and other commercials over the radio. I saw Harvey Ewing, the retired millionaire, who had acquired a fortune selling "Ewing's Little-Giant Can-Openers". However, he was too busy talking to F. William Horsely, who made his money selling frappes at Brown's, on a commission basis, to notice me. Over in one corner, I saw a group of naval officers debating naval tactics. Among them were Paul Dulong, Robert Corbett, Ernest Murley, Allen Reed and, last but not least, "V for Victory" Baldwin. I overheard Reedy saying, "You've got to advance slowly; gain a strategic position, and then—"; the roar of the crowd drowned out the rest of the discussion.

Just as I reached the door, a bevy of beautiful nurses bore down on me, and I was quite surprised to recognize Louise Benson, Mildred McCarthy, Charlotte Vaughn, and Janet Swift.

Then I remembered that a handsome doctor had just passed. No wonder the girls were in such a great hurry.

Just outside the building, I saw Connie Kearns on a soap-box. From what I could gather, she was speaking on the subject "Why Men Are Unfit To Run The Government". A placard on the box read —"Kearns for President".

Since I wanted to get my latest prophetic manuscript "The World after 2000" printed, I thought I would try to get an interview with D. Marvelle of the Raiche Publishing Co. Gaining an audience was harder than hitting a F. H. S. line. While waiting my turn, I noticed Florence Joshua, and Gladys Murley pounding away on typewriters in the far corner of the room. Then, the private secretary, Eleanor Lunny, asked me to step inside, and I entered the inner office. Imagine my surprise when I was greeted by Dot Marvelle. I was expecting a man, and to my further amazement, I was told that Betty Raiche was the owner of the company. After I had given her my sales talk, Dot agreed to publish my book, but she named the price. She then told me that the company had recently published the year's best seller, "Exodus with the Zephyr", by Vernice Furtado, and a treatise on women "O tempora! O mores!" by Edward Hammond. However, she related that they were having a difficult job to get Virginia Humphreys, the poet laureate, to publish her poetry at their publishing house.

Back in the street again, I purchased a newspaper "The Straggler" owned and published by Harvey Poenack. A headline on the front page said "Casanova Minister Takes Third Wife", and right below was a picture of Clarke Wilbor. Other headlines were: "New Element Discovered by 'Mad Scientist'" (who turned out to be John Handley); "Crowds Throng to Art Gallery to see Pictures by Albino, Wetmore, and Phaneuf"; "The Goulart Brothers' Ship-Yard Launches New Battleship". A picture of Abram Simmons, "the daring young man on the flying trapeze", taken by Flash Carter, held the spotlight on the second page.

On the sports page, a sensational article by Charles Archibald entitled "How Drieson Makes Points" attracted my eye. Ernest, playing for the North End Swishers along with Walt Prejsnar had totaled five hundred points in twenty games. Archibald claimed that it was done by magnets. I also read that Alfred Foster had just set a record for auto racing, and that Albert Foster, now the most talked of rookie in baseball, had injured his ankle. Another headline proclaimed that Art Paquette, the home run king, was holding out for $70,000 a season.

In the amusement section, I noticed that Wanda Cornell, Becky Ledwell, and Lucille Fleurent were starring in "How Blue is My River". In the legitimate stage column, I read that Edward Lowrie was playing his farewell appearance as Macbeth, and that Faith Slater was portraying Lady Macbeth. Down in a corner, there was a notice that Natalie Kerwin was giving a violin concert at Hasting Hall, and that Majorie Candage, the famous singer, was due next week.

Having plenty of time, I decided to look over the new Fairhaven College, situated down by the Fort. As I was feeling in the mood, I decided to walk. Going down Green Street, I met a great many old classmates. Charlotte Spooner told me that she and Mary Harrison were modeling Richard's clothes. Dot Bold said that she was an usherette, and that Dot Barrett and Clara Kristiansen were cashiers at the same theatre. A group of Girl Scouts filed by. Rose Lawton, Dorothy Taber, Alice Mayer, and Martha Daffinee were leading the troop. Just as I met Jean Harkness, the prominent social worker, another procession came marching up the street. I recognized Alice Caton, Rita Fortin, Annie Lavoie, and Lillian Perry walking four abreast with bats over their shoulders. I thought, perhaps, they were out to do a job on someone, but Jean assured me that they were only going up to the Park to play a game of softball. Right behind them were Lillian Delano, Elsie Fielding, and Lucinda Rogers, all carrying violin cases, and again Jean clarified the situation by telling me that they were on their way to play in the Fairhaven Symphony Orchestra.

Just as the college came into view, I met Barbara Sutcliffe on the arm of a handsome aviator. She told me that she was now an air hostess for Perry's Transcontinental Air Lines, owned by Daniel Perry. She also related that Mary Jenkins and Charlotte Huckins were opening a tremendous department store on Washington Street, and strongly advised me to trade there.

I entered the college, and proceeded to the main office where Jean Cyr directed me to Professor Gifford, Ph. D., LL. D., L. H. D. The professor showed me around the school, ably assisted by his charming wife. I could not recall her name, but I remembered that she used to go to high school with me. She was a short girl and used to sit behind Andre Trudeau in Room 7. Andre, by the way, and Armand Poyant were the foremen of the "Globular Gold Concessions" mines. I found out that Mary Dias was teaching French, Jean Burke was a dietician, Janice Holland was teaching Latin, Gloria Atkinson and Jane d'Anjou were instructors in physical education, and that Jean Campbell was teaching English. The professor also informed me that William Steele held the chair of Intellectual and Moral Philosophy in the woman's section.

Being weary of city life, I made up my mind to visit Mattapoisett. I hailed a Cahoon taxi and was on my way. At least, I thought I was! The inside of the cab certainly had an odd arrangement. There was a big picture of Richard Cahoon hung up between the front and back seats. There also was a slot machine bar, but being a teetotaler, I did not waste any slugs. We had only gone about 100 yards, when — bang — siss! the motor went dead. It was just like a Cahoon taxi to pull a trick like that! The driver, who turned out to be John Chassee, coasted into a "Brehaut Super-Garage" and Al Silva, the ace mechanic, assigned himself to the job. While Al was taking the motor apart, I was reading "Esquire" in Brehaut's private office. Much to my surprise, Alan Perkins had taken over Petty's job. After taking the motor apart, three or four times, Al finally diagnosed the case. The battery had dropped out.

Eventually I reached Mattapoisett but I hardly knew the old place. The first person I saw was Carroll Driscoll, the technical advisor of the Mattapoisett-Los Angeles Railroad. He told me that he was working on a flying locomotive invention, but he got so technical in his explanation that I did not know whether he was talking English or Greek. When he noticed the blank look on my face, he became discouraged and promptly terminated his discourse. Later he told me that Audrey Wallner was running "The Mattapoisett Gaming House", and that she was doing a very profitable business. He also related that Mary Alden was playing Juliet at the "Mattapoisett Opera House".

On learning that the Coast Guard Station at Sconticut Neck was being renovated, I called a taxi, not a "Cahoon Cab", and drove down to see the place. Carroll had told me that Raul Cardoza was the head man at the station. However, when I tried to see him to get permission to look over the grounds, I was told that he was having an important conference with some officers of the Army Air Corps. On further investigation, I discovered that these officers were Arnold Egan and Ralph Canedy, both heroes in World War II. Egan in a Rioux plane, designed by Robert Rioux, now the famous lover of stage and screen, had shot down 175 Axis planes. After waiting for a half an hour, I gave up and left.

Although I admit that I am quite an unusual personality, I, too, have to eat. Searching around for an eating place, I noticed a sign reading thus: "The Grecian Urn — Norma and Dino Gulecas — Props". As I entered, the hostess, Natalie Greene, led me to a table quite close to the orchestra. To my surprise, Eleanor Eldridge was the leader. It was an all-girl orchestra, the trumpet player being the only exception. I discovered, later, that the trumpeter was none other than George Ferreira. Thus ended my journey around the thriving metropolis of Fairhaven.

Some of you will not like this prophecy; others will think that it is too fantastic. Blame Zzyt! Do not blame me!

The Future

The class of nineteen forty-two
Had hoped to end this year
With bright blue skies, and sun on high,
But war has entered here.

All selfishness, material gain
Are gone for the duration
We cannot think of just ourselves
But must think of our nation.

The sacred portals open wide;
We step forth into life.
The fresh clean air breathes on our face.
We surge to join the strife.

We want to do all in our power
To make this world a place
Where progress, unity, and peace
Will bless each land and race!

The Fairhaven High School Honor Society Chapter 573 of the National Honor Society was founded in 1927. Including those initiated on March 23, 1942, the total number who are enrolled is now 237.

The purpose of those who founded the national society and its local branches has been to stimulate high ideals and standards of scholarship, leadership, character, and service among the pupils. These aims are emphasized in the initiation ceremony and the ceremony for the installation of officers. Music, candle-light, and the ritual of the initiation all serve to emphasize the responsibility that membership entails as well as the honor that it confers.

The Student Council

ELI G. BRALEY, JR.
President

HARVEY S. EWING
Vice-President

LOUISE BENSON
Secretary-Treasurer

The Student Council of the Fairhaven High School was formed by our late principal, Mr. George C. Dickey. Its purpose is to assist in the management of the High School, and to foster good school spirit. It strives to encourage all pupils to conduct themselves as good school citizens, and to instill a spirit of democracy in the student body. There is a close relationship between the Council and the Fairhaven Improvement Association. The president of the Council is also a vice-president of the Association.

Under the able leadership of Mr. Chester M. Downing, principal, the Student Council this year was active in the Victory Book Campaign, and in preparing an honor roll of former students of the High School who are now in service. The Council was also host to the delegates of the Southeastern Branch of Student Councils in April.

Representatives

The Senior Class and the Faculty have chosen Betty Raiche as the "Good Citizenship Pilgrim" for 1942. This honor is given to a senior girl possessing outstanding qualities of character, personality, and patriotism. This year she represented our school at the state conference of the Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution in Boston.

ELIZABETH RAICHE

RICHARD S. CAHOON

Each year a student is chosen by Mr. Downing, the principal, to represent the High School at the Rotary Club of New Bedford. Members of this Club are the outstanding men — one from each of the professions — in the community. Richard Cahoon was selected to represent our school this year. He attends the meetings of the Rotary Club each week and, in this way, becomes thoroughly familiar with the work of the organization.

The Cheerleaders

This year's squad of cheerleaders was composed of eight active girls, who have done much toward maintaining and augmenting the Fairhaven school spirit which has distinguished itself so well in all sports. The squad has been successful in composing new school cheers, and popularizing them with the assistance of Miss Cushing, instructor in physical education.

Louise Benson and Janet Swift were the co-head cheerleaders of the squad comprised of Ruth Byerly, Pauline Duval, Marjorie Hayward, Betty Burton, Anne Lawton and Susan Wilbor. The squad wore blue skirts and white sweaters, while the co-head cheerleaders were dressed all in white.

The Senior Play

On the evening of March 27, 1942, the Senior Class successfully presented the play, $90,000 in Green. This year's dramatic vehicle had an added attraction: Robert Knipe, class of 1940, was the author. Under the expert guidance of Miss Hoyle, the students proved themselves real actors and actresses.

The play centered about Betty Ford, exceptionally well portrayed by Mildred McCarthy, and her three emeralds valued at $90,000. Her newly-acquired husband, Bramwell Ford, well depicted by Robert Rioux, was a quiet western rancher.

After the wedding Gracie Trent, in reality Audrey Wallner, Betty's maid of honor and dearest friend, appeared on the scene, and became romantically interested in Slim Stover, self-appointed adviser and friend of Bram's. Earl Fisher carried out this part of a comboy to perfection and provided much of the comedy. Edward Hammond as Jackson W. Tuttle, an expert on all phases of radio, assisted with the humor.

Excitement began when an ex-convict, Charles Archibald, and his wife, Faith Slater, tried to steal an emerald from Mrs. Ford's necklace. The plot thickened as Valerie Shea — Becky Ledwell — the Ford's maid, proved to be attempting a robbery of another stone in the necklace. At a very opportune time, Peter Shea or Dennis Mahoney, working as an engineer on the honeymoon boat, threw off the light switch, thus providing an opportunity for the robbery.

When Captain Scudder, very well played by William Gifford, solved the robbery, Betty demanded that the culprits be put in the brig, and Eli Braley as the ship's officer took them there.

Bram tried to show Betty that her father had obtained the emeralds lawfully but without feeling for the former owner. He finally proved his point when he told of his affection for the third stone. This third emerald had once been his, but because of financial circumstances he had had to sell it. The scene was well played, and was one of the many impressive ones in the play.

Mrs. Ford realized she had been unthoughtful of her fellow-beings, and as the curtain falls, Betty instructs the Captain to release the prisoners.

In addition to the excellent cast and capable director, much credit is due to the various committees, the prompter, and the orchestra.

The Orchestra

The Fairhaven High School Orchestra was organized in 1926 by Mr. Clarence E. Jones of New Bedford. As the town and school became more musically-minded, people realized that a good High School Orchestra was desirable. Mr. F. W. Kempf was appointed conductor, and under his direction this organization has progressed rapidly. After many years of service to our school, Mr. Kempf resigned his position as conductor in December of this school year, and the whole school deeply regrets his leaving. His position has been adequately filled, however, by Mr. C. W. Arey. The orchestra holds weekly rehearsals and plays for many school functions. Each year it joins with the High School Chorus in presenting an annual concert and assists at graduation. Two outstanding features of its program this year were the foundation of a special ensemble for patriotic work in the community, and participation in the annual May Music Festival.

The Band

Our Fairhaven High School Band has won much praise and now is rated as among the finest in New England. Each year at the New England and State Music Festivals, it has performed with credit. These results have been due to the efforts of Mr. Arey, conductor, and Miss Elizabeth Hastings, advisor and band mother, together with the cooperation and service of the Band members themselves. An annual trip to Boston, with the New Bedford High School Band, to hear worth-while music is an important feature in the yearly activities of our Band. Fine comradeship is shown by both bands in the exchange of assembly programs, and in the stimulating demonstrations at the "big game".

Thursday evening is "band night" when forty members report for regular rehearsals.

A Cappella Choir

In September, 1939, the A Cappella Choir was organized under the skilled management of Miss Agnes Santry, supervisor of vocal music. This group of boys and girls has sung before several civic organizations as well as at school concerts and assemblies. An outstanding feature of this group is their performance without an accompaniment. Members of the A Cappella Choir include the following: Jean Campbell, Audrey Wallner, Marjorie Hayward, Marjorie Terry, Jean Fallow, Natalie Rebello, Shirley Santos, Shirley Cowen, Natalie Kerwin, Cecilia LeClaire, Barbara Taylor, Carol Merchant, Beverly Morey, Ruth Byerly, Susan Wilbor, Louise Green, Mary Alden, Mildred McCarthy, Clarke Wilbor, Albert Silva, Alden Hayward, Raymond Huggard, Lindsey Gifford, Richard Cahoon, Louis Adams, and Walter Brehaut.

Athletics

Football

This year's football team, which was a powerful threat to any one of its opponents, came up with quite a successful season. Out of nine games, the team was defeated but three times. Those three contests, however, were dropped to very tough opponents.

The New Bedford game was lost, but only after our boys had fought a magnificent battle. On the whole our team showed itself to be far superior to teams of its size.

The complete schedule is as follows:

Fairhaven	41	Warren, R. I.	7
Fairhaven	23	Northbridge	0
Fairhaven	6	Taunton	0
Fairhaven	45	Dartmouth	0
Fairhaven	0	Vocational	13
Fairhaven	40	Provincetown	13
Fairhaven	13	Attleboro	21
Fairhaven	13	Coyle	6
Fairhaven	6	New Bedford	20

Basketball

Although the list of victories and defeats does not look like that of a championship team, the 1942 basketball squad was, nevertheless, a quintet of which to be proud. The team played a hard string of 22 games, winning six and losing sixteen.

Many of the games which were dropped were lost by only one or two baskets. If our boys had been lucky, the list of wins and losses might have looked a bit more healthy. This year's team was a small but scrappy outfit that played hard and well.

One of the bright spots of the season was the setting of a new school record for high-scoring by Captain "Ernie" Driesen, who caged 272 points, which was also tops for the entire Bristol County during 1941-1942.

Track

As this book goes to press, the track team is still in the practice stage. However, it looks as though Fairhaven will be ably represented by the boys that are out for the squad. Coach Entin has been drilling the candidates for a number of weeks now. If the team shows itself in the meets as well as it has done in the practice sessions, then there are many fine victories in store for us.

Thus far the schedule consists of three dual meets, New Bedford, Rockland, and Barnstable. There is also the Needham Interscholastic Meet on May 23rd and the South Shore Meet on May 30th.

Baseball

This year's baseball team had quite a successful start. The pitching staff seemed to be one of the best in recent years, and, in general, it looked as though Fairhaven would be tough enough for any of its opponents.

At the opening of the season the fielding was not up to par, but after a little practice, it improved considerably.

The bright spot on this year's team was the pitching staff. To date a considerable number of well-pitched games have been turned in, and as this book goes to press, the outlook for a good season is the brightest in two or three years.

Girl's Basketball

This year the girls' basketball squad of Fairhaven High School, was the finest in several years. The season was highlighted by two victories over their ever-present foe, Dartmouth. The customary get-together in the cafeteria, following each game, helped to increase the longstanding friendship between the girls of each school.

Intra-mural class teams and color teams were formed by Miss Helen Cushing, basketball coach. The Senior team was victor of three games in the inter-class tournaments.

Girl's Hockey

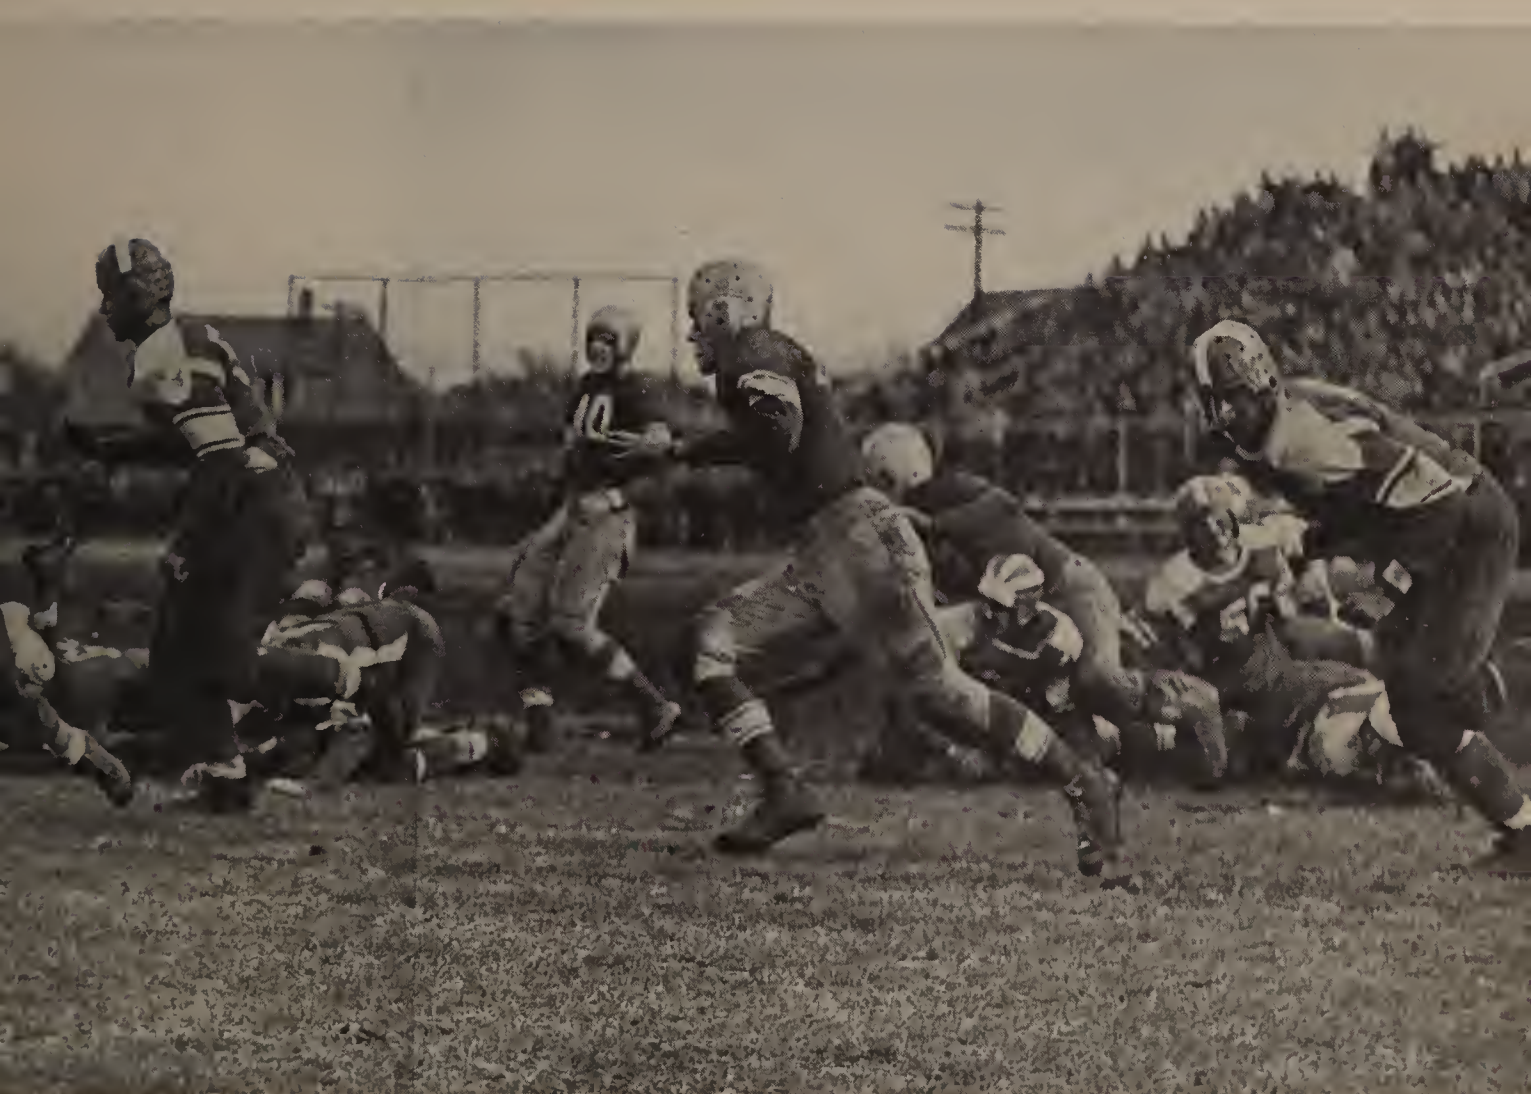

During the season, the girls' hockey team enjoyed two games with their traditional rivals, Dartmouth High School.

Miss Helen Cushing coached this year's squad which tied one and lost one game. Outplaying the rivals each time, the girls lacked only scoring ability, as they were fine defensively. Those on the hockey team were: Jane d'Anjou, Gloria Atkinson, Mary Bouley, Janice Braley, Betty Burton, Jean Campbell, Pauline Duval, Jean Fallow, Mary Furtado, Priscilla Furtado, Ann Lawton, Betty Lewis, Louise Noblet, Betty Raiche, Irene Raposa, Eleanor Roderick, Eunice Rogers, Barbara Sutcliffe, Lois Swift, Millicent Wetmore, Frances Wilde, Susan Wilbur.
